Understanding Interconnectedness from the Military Nurse Perspective

Author(s): Katrina Embrey, DNS, RN, Catherine Gilbert, EdD, RN and Helen Taggart, PhD, RN

Overview
The purpose of this activity is to investigate the relationships and differences of professional nurses practicing in military settings across the globe from World War Two through present conflicts and to explore health promotions and healing from a military perspective. Nurse participants represented different branches of the military, Army, Air Force, and Navy. The researchers video recorded interviews with ten nurses who were asked to share the challenges and rewards they experienced in military settings. These nurses alluded to reports of similar holistic nursing practices in this study mirroring Nightingale’s commitment to holistic nursing care provided in the Crimea.
